

History of Human Language confounds Evolutionists Same Language, same Words

Genesis 11:1 Now the whole earth used the same language {i.e. syntax} and the same words.

- 9 Therefore its name was called Babel, because there the LORD confused the language of the whole earth; and from there the LORD ~~scattered~~ flung them rapidly abroad over the face of the whole earth.

Quotes from evolutionists:

That language of a highly abstract nature must have been with man in very, very early times seems to have been confirmed by the findings. Alexander Marshack, "Upper Paleolithic Notation and Symbol," Science, vol. 178, 1972, p. 817ff.

In fact, the simpler the culture, the more complex in this sense was its language likely to prove. Evidently therefore, the whole concept of arranging these cultures in an evolutionary scale was quite wrong. In contrast to the general course of cultural evolution, languages moved from complex to simple. Clyde Kluckhohn, Mirror for Man, McGraw Hill, New York, 1969, p.148.

Many attempts have been made to determine the evolutionary origin of language and all have failed." Maybe language did not evolve at all! G.G. Simpson, "The Biology of Natural Man," Science, vol.152, 1966, p.477.

This throws us back upon an old and mystifying problem. If we find no prototype of speech in the highest animals, and man will not say even the first word by instinct, then how did all his tribes acquire their various languages? The problem is so baffling that it is no longer considered debatable. Susanne Langer, Philosophy in a New Key, Mentor Books, New American Library, New York, 1952, p.87.

It was a profound saying of, that 'Man is man only by means of speech, but in order to invent speech he must be already man.' Wilhelm Humboldt, quoted by Charles Lyell, The Antiquity of Man (1863)
